Empower young people to develop healthy relationships

A recent report from the NSPCC claimed that the need for the RSE curriculum is crucial after lockdown. Young people's online relationships have escalated and there is increased communication with friends and partners through social media.

With the statutory RSE framework rolled out across the country, there has never been a more important time to have confidence in your school's approach to assessing and improving your RSE delivery.

Our conference will provide you with age and stage appropriate practical workshops and engaging keynotes designed to enrich your RSE programme and help develop healthy relationships within your school.

PLAN FOR PROGRESS: establish systems to track your progress, see what has worked, and what you can improve

PARENTAL ENGAGEMENT: ensure that parents are supportive of your RSE delivery with practical strategies and an assured manner
